Education is a unique and basic sub-system of society for development and empowerment of human being. It is ever demanding for human being. It provides skilled, empowered and healthy individuals to society and citizens to the nations or world. The World Bank has given Global Education First Initiative in the year 2012, where it has considered education as the basic building block of every society. The Society has to think over past, present and future of education and construct its concrete steps or actions to take in consideration.

Education and society are mutually related with each other and performing for the betterment of the human beings. Various stakeholders are connected with the system and process of education at various levels. The sub-systems of society are doing attempts to achieve dominance over each other or to be superior in the society. Such attempts should remove and try to establish mutual harmony and consistency in context of society. The major sub-system of society- Education- requires prime attention as well as more regards and support. With due involvement and coordination from all of them education leads towards achievement of its goals and objectives. It is essential to think and discuss on these subjects and to implement in real life situations.
